

iF award – Outstanding Design

Since their introduction in 1953, the iF awards have been regarded as a reliable and exclusive indicator worldwide for “prize-winning” design. The iF label awarded by international experts is a globally respected accolade for proven quality in design and is utilised by companies as a visible element in their communication media, providing a guideline for the top products and creative ideas on the market. When the highest musicality connects with first-class design, it produces a masterpiece like the Schimmel C 116 Modern Cubus piano. The clear and minimalistic presentation stresses the vertical line and lends itself well to the model’s size. New finishing techniques and materials, like aluminum used as counterpoint to the polished piano lacquer, underline the important visual elements of the instrument.
